SHOW NOTES

P.U.R.R. Punk Clown Takeover at
Barrel Proof Lounge - October 9th

This show was fucking awesome. Great bands, great turnout, and so many clowns! Menstrual Tramps were great, Damage Party was amazing! The event also raised over $2000 for Sonoma County Acts of Kindness. Were you there? Tell us about it on the website. Didn't know about it? Keep an eye out on the calendar for the next event. Knew about it but stayed home anyway? Too bad for you, loser.

A note to the P.U.R.R. crew: Love what you're doing, but don't love that your only online platform is Instagram. Billionaire-controlled platforms are a shitty place to plan the resistance. Get in touch with the Brog Cellectave and maybe we can hook you up with a website.

Show Up Trivia!

How well do you know your favorite zine?
(answers are inside on the map)

1 A: The first issue featured a fat Superman taken from the cover of Superman no. 221, "The Two-Ton Superman". What was the list price of that comic book from 1939?
B: What did Superman drink to make him get so fat?

2 A: The interior of that issue has a classic photo of a metal band in the background that was originally going to be part of the "find the bass player" activity page. What band was it?
B: What about that band photo ruined that activity page idea?

3 A: The second issue featured the backglass from a pinball machine on the front cover. What's the name of that game?
B: What company manufactured it?

4 A: The interior of that issue has the backglass from another pinball machine in the background. Which one?
B: That machine has a secret multiball bonus mode.
What is it called and how do you start it?

5 A: The "SHOW UP Santa" part of the logo on each zine is made up from the logos from three comic books. Which ones?
B: How many of those covers have been featured in the zine?

Super Bonus (worth a beer if you find me with the correct answer): "Rosa" in the logo is from an X-Men comic featuring the first appearance of which reptilian villain? What would they rather do instead of curing cancer?

How did you do? 1 pt for each correct A or B

10 pts: You are a SHOW UP Superstar and should probably be the one writing the zine.
7-9 pts: You really know your SHOW UP trivia, join the Brog Cellectave and help them dominate.
4-6 pts: You are pretty cool and should definitely keep reading this zine to become even cooler.
1-3 pts: At least your mom thinks you're cool, but only because you read the zine.
